

PARENTS AND PROFESSIONALS: PRACTICAL SOLUTIONS FOR SUCCESS FOR STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES

SATURDAY - DECEMBER 2, 2006

Sponsored by the
Ohio Center for Autism and Low Incidence, S.P.E.A.K., and Hopewell SERRC

This exciting conference will highlight effective strategies for promoting the success of students with disabilities at school and home. This unique parent-professional team will emphasize the importance of parents and teachers working together to identify practical solutions for supporting students. They will share concrete solutions for improving both academic and social outcomes to support community life for individuals with disabilities.

YOU WILL LEARN:

- » Team building: The critical ingredient
- » Ten essential things every classroom should have
- » Five basic rules for success for students with special needs
- » How to recognize behavioral issues, prevent meltdowns, and cope with them when they occur
- » How to identify and teach the all-important "hidden curriculum"
- » Strategies for addressing sexual and safety issues among children and youth with disabilities

PRESENTERS:

Rhonda Schelvan, M.S. Ed., is from Vancouver, Washington, where she is an autism consultant special education teacher. She is also the co-author of The Hidden Curriculum: Practical Solutions for Understanding Unstated Rules in Social Situations.

Kristi Sakai, who lives in Eugene, Oregon, is the parent of three children who have Asperger Syndrome. She is the author of Finding Our Way: Practical Solutions for Creating a Supportive Home and Community for the Asperger Syndrome Family, which won the Autism Society of America 2006 Literary Work of the Year Award.
